Kalahari desert

Deserts cover about a fifth of the world's land area. The Kalahari desert covers most of Botswana, parts of Namibia and stretches into South Africa. It is one of the world's largest deserts and it is four times the size of Britain.

In the daytime, it is extremely hot, but at night it is cold. The Kalahari does not have many plants and most of the animals that live there can survive underground. This is because of the heat during the day, but they come out at night when it is cool.

However, the climate is changing and this desert does not have as much rain as it did a few years ago. Experts say that the wind is becoming stronger, too. This means that the sand is moving around and the desert is actually getting bigger. In fact, the sand might soon cover large areas of farm land.

Unfortunately, this could mean that the poorest people might have an even harder time surviving in the desert. Most of them might have to move to a better place.

1. Deserts cover one fifth of the world.
2. The Kalahari covers all of Botswana.
3. Namibia is next to South Africa.
4. Britain is smaller than the Kalahari.
5. There are no animals in the Kalahari.
6. The Kalahari has more rain now than in the past.
7. The wind brings more rain to the desert.
8. The Kalahari is growing.
9. There are people living in the Kalahari.
10. The Kalahari people live in tents.

WRITING (Time: 15 minutes, Maximum points – 10)

Your British pen-friend, Jill has written a letter to you. She wrote about her favourite dish, pizza. She wonders what traditional Russian dishes you like. What is your favourite dish? Do you eat fast food? Why? Write a letter back (80-100 words). Don't forget the rules of writing letters!

Hello, Jill!
It's nice to get a letter from you. My favourite Russian traditional dishes are borscht and pelmeni. But my favourite dishes are sushi and pizza too!
I like to eat fast food, but not too much.
I like to eat fast food, because it is tasty.

And I eat fast food when I'm bored and when I'm very hungry. So, I want to ask you, what is your favourite traditional English dish? And what is your favourite subject at school?

Mike is English and P.E.

Best wishes,
Misha.
